

How Vocabulary cards help me

Dylan H.

Vocabulary cards help me because, they're easy to understand and the definition of the word is on the back.

We always recite the cards every day, then our teacher tells us to go over the words when we're done she says the definition of a word, and we have to guess which word it belongs to.

We add two vocabulary cards every day and write the definition and an example of the word on the back.

Vocabulary cards help me make my sentences shorter by adding one of the vocabulary words that also makes it easier to understand since I know what the words mean. I love having my vocabulary cards because they help with my grades in class and they are a great tool to have.

In Mrs. Roach's classroom, we use vocabulary words to write down certain words that we don't know. We write it big on the front of the notecard, and write our initials. Then, on the back we write whether it's a noun, verb, or an adjective. Then we write the definition. Below that, we write synonyms and sometimes antonyms. If we find the word later in the book, or in a different book, I could easily find the meaning, and then eventually I would memorize the meaning. It helps me expand my vocabulary and helps me understand the book more, and what they mean in the text. My favorite word we learned was Contortions.

Contortions means to bend or twist in a pose, like a person from the circus. It has helped me learn a lot of new words, and also refresh my memory from words I learned last year.

-Olivia

Max O [REDACTED]
11/29/16

The flash cards help me because they write it and they have pictures. We stud them evry day and some times we have tests on thres wards so that's why we study them so we can get beter with them. And with other words to like ranting, maniac and allergy. This is how the flash cards help me.